Soldier of Liberty

October 9, 2003

Enlist in the 2nd Virginia Regiment with a young recruit, Nathaniel Hutcheson, and experience the everyday life of a soldier on the eve of the American Revolution. March with him into battle for his first encounter with the noise, confusion, and horrors of war.

Missions to America

November 6, 2003

Travel to America's first English settlement, a French Great Lakes mission, and a Spanish ranch in the Southwest to explore how different European nations colonized North America.

A Day in the Life

December 4, 2003

Walk in the footsteps of an apprenticed boy, a well-to-do young lady and a slave. Enter their world and experience a day in colonial Williamsburg.

The Rare Breeds

January 15, 2004

Discover how work animals were used in colonial Virginia and the importance Colonial Williamsburg places on preserving rare breeds in recreating the life and times of early America.

Flames of Freedom

February 12, 2004

Examine how African Americans resisted slavery. Frederick Douglass narrates this history of rebellions from colonial times to John Brown's raid on Harper's Ferry.

"A Publick Education"

March 11, 2004

A free, public education for all Americans was not always the standard. Horace Mann traces the methods of education from the colonial period to the one-room schoolhouses of the 1840s for the purpose of universal education.

Mr. Alderson's Farm

April 15, 2004

In the 18th and 19th centuries, most Americans were farmers. Explore the rural traditions, self-reliance, economy, and seasonal rhythms of farming life.
